EXCITING SESSION

Of the People's Fire Insurance Company.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 28.—The third successive special meeting of the People's Fire Insurance Company commenced at 11:30 o'clock this forenoon, in City Hall, with a very large attendance. A vote was adopted that only stockholders or those with proxies would be admitted. The meeting was very heated and an exciting colloquy ensued between Messrs. Pillsbury and Briggs.

Hon. David Cross, chairman of the advisory committee, presented a report embodying these resolutions: That the board of directors resign; that an entirely new board to consist of nine members be chosen; that all the officers of the company resign; to take effect on the qualification of their successors; that the capital stock be decreased to $100,000; that it then be increased not exceeding $200,000 by the issue of new stock to be paid for at par by the stockholders of the date.

Hon. J. F. Briggs, of the committee of stockholders, reported the condition of the company as nearly as could be determined, as follows: Assets admitted by the insurance company, $501,344.98; contingent assets, $188,332.22; grand total, $690,677.20; liabilities, including $100,000 capital stock, $638,000. A long and exciting discussion followed on the acceptance of the report.

On motion of R. W. Pillsbury, of Derry, it was voted that a reward of $1,000 be offered for the apprehension of Chas. F. Morrill. Hon. J. F. Briggs moved that the officers take steps for the immediate collection of some $600,000 of personal notes held by the company. The stockholders voted on a stock vote 2,601 shares in favor of reduction of capital to $100,000 and 205 shares no, 2,806 shares being represented.

The stockholders then unanimously voted to increase the stock not exceeding $200,000, and appointed a committee to make the necessary changes in the by-laws and reduce the board of directors to 9. Adjourned.

Mr. Briggs' motion for the immediate collection of $90,000 personal notes was adopted. The advisory committee's report was adopted in part, as outlined in the report above.

The Vegetarian Creed.

[Dr. Nortie in the Review of Reviews.]

One of the causes which have led people to reject the doctrine of vegetarianism is the idea that it is inspired by platonic, religious convictions and monastic mortification. But this is a grave error, for the rational vegetarianism of to-day is entirely scientific and dictated by the sole desire to follow a system conforming to the laws of nature. It has science on its side, and only the force of habit is opposed to it. The muscles become soft, the size diminishes, humanity degenerates, and is kept in working order only by sedatives and tonics.

The numerous maladies of the stomach and the intestines, from simple catarrh to the most serious diseases of the organs, are often due to our appetite for meat and other stimulants. Vegetarianism, we are told by Dr. Bonnejoy, does not consist solely in vegetable food; but is based on three dietetic axioms: First, the general rebuilding power lies in cereals, seeds, vegetables, tubers, fruits, eggs, milk and their derivatives; second, the food, the air, and, in general, everything that is introduced into the body should show absolute purity, freshness and entire absence of falsifications, mixture and adulteration, even in the smallest quantities; third, it is necessary, as far as may be possible, for each one to manufacture his foods and drinks at home, in order to reach the desired results.

These are the principal dogmas of the vegetarians. Man is not intended to eat meat. His jaw is made to grind grain and fruits. His hands are made to gather them. The Darwinian theory does not permit us for an instant to doubt the frugivorous nature of man. His intestinal canal is also a proof. In the lion this is three times as long as his body; in man, seven or eight times as long.

The human body is a machine which, to be kept in good working order, should be nourished according to scientific rules and not at the desire of our fancies. Four classes of substances are necessary for the maintenance of life—the albuminoids, the carbohydrates, the fats, the minerals. Now, meat contains but three of these, while the vegetables contain all four. Vegetable food is also necessary for our intellectual life; for, as Moleschott has said, without phosphorus there is no thought. The phosphorus contained in vegetable food is almost double the amount contained in animal food. But these are not all the advantages of vegetarianism.

Those who believe that meat gives the rose color to the cheeks and lips must be shown their error. For, as Professor Musset has shown, the amount of oxide contained in the vegetables is much greater than that found in meat. However, vegetarianism is not too presumptuous, with regard to its wonderful powers. Its doctrines demand at the same time the constant and intelligent practice of all sorts of hygienic rules.

It calls to its aid pure air, light, heat or cold, water, exercise and, commencing with alcohol, the condemnation of all stimulants. In these conditions it is difficult to say which would prove more beneficial, the renunciation of meat or the application of a well understood hygiene. It is, however, indisputable that vegetarianism, at its best, comprises in its accessories, many things which make it worthy of general sympathy.

Suicide Follows Arrest.

A young man known as John Kehoe, who lived at 265 Lee avenue, Williamsburgh, cut his throat from ear to ear in his lodging last night, in the presence of three detectives who had arrested him for burglary, to one of whom he was handcuffed, says the New York Sun.

When he hired the room from Mrs. Headifer, the landlady, about a year ago, he told her that he was the son of a chief officer in the Fire Department of this city, and that he had come to Williamsburgh to live because he wanted to get away from his friends and boon companions. Kehoe's appearance and talk impressed Mrs. Headifer, and she let him have a room on the second floor. Mrs. Headifer noticed that Kehoe was out late every night. When she questioned him about this he told her that he was a speculator, and had to be constantly on the watch, so as to obtain goods at a reasonable figure and sell them at a good profit. Kehoe's room and the large closet in it became filled after a while with an assortment of fine perfumery and valuable stationery and cutlery. He told Mrs. Headifer repeatedly that the things all represented bargains which he had scooped.

Kehoe had lately tried to sell perfumery and cutlery in Williamsburgh stores. The police were informed of his transactions, and when they made an investigation they discovered that some of the things which Kehoe had succeeded in disposing off were identical with a lot of property that had been stolen more than two weeks ago from the cutlery store of Cornelius Bolton, 2,625 Atlanta avenue, Brooklyn.

The rest of the stolen property the police had traced to James H. Closson, of [illegible] street, this city, whom they arrested. The booty he [illegible] day, and it was by him they were put upon Kehoe's track.

Acting upon the information furnished by Closson, Detectives Ryan, Rall and Holland, of the Brooklyn Central office, began to patrol Lee avenue, from Wilson street to Keap street, on account for Kehoe at 7 o'clock last night. Shortly before 7.30 o'clock Kehoe came along on his way to his lodging. When the detectives pounced upon him Kehoe showed fight, but he was soon subdued and his left wrist handcuffed to Detective Ryan's right wrist. He was first taken to the Clymer street station and searched but nothing of an incriminating nature was found. The detectives then took him to his lodging. On one side of the room was a cot on which Kehoe slept. A small table was near the cot. When the detectives with their prisoner reached the room, Ryan took station with Kehoe between the table and the bed. Detective Holland guarded the door while Detective Rall searched the closet. He found dozens of penknives, perfumery bottles and other articles. As Rall handed the articles to Detective Ryan and the latter laid them on the table they were identified as Bolton's property.

While Rall was handing some bottles to him Ryan felt a tugging at his wrist, and, as he looked around, Kehoe fell backward on his cot and a penknife dropped from his right hand to the floor. Realizing what had happened almost before he saw the wound the penknife had made, Ryan called out:

"Good God, he has cut his throat!"

While Ryan was stooping down to take the bottles from Rall, Kehoe had slid a single-bladed penknife which was open and had cut his throat from ear to ear, severing the jugular vein.

The suicide was dead by the time Dr. Louis Hess, who had been summoned by a son of Mrs. Headifer, reached the house.

Detective Rall unlocked the handcuffs on Kehoe's wrist, and the dead man was laid on his cot, and Coroner Creamer notified.

Nothing was found in Kehoe's room from which the address of his family could be obtained. Detective Rall told a Sun reporter he didn't the slightest doubt that Kehoe had robbed other shops than Bolton's.

Mecca and Cholera.

[Dr. Ernest Hart in Popular Science Monthly.]

From seventy to a hundred thousand seems to be the ordinary average number of those who visit Mecca during the festival, and who are present at Mount Arafat on the 9th of Zul Hijjah. They come from every quarter of the compass—inland by caravan from Syria and Persia, Turkey and Afghanistan; by sea from Red Sea ports; from Africa, across the whole width of which many of the weary pilgrims have walked; and from every part of the world where the standard of Islam has been raised.

With no provision for decency or comfort they camp around or crowd into lodgings in the sacred city. They make excursions, clamber up the mountains, spend hours in the blazing sun, are sickened with rotting smells arising from the thousands of animals which are sacrificed; crush and slide in the Kaba; and, finally, as if they had not already run sufficient risk of catching every possible complaint, they drink the water of Zem Zem. This is the well from which Hagar is said to have drawn water for her son Ishmael, and the drinking of the water is a most holy rite.

The supply, however, is not as great as could be desired for so large a crowd of pilgrims, and the manner of dealing with it at the well goes far to explain the intensity of the poison and the fearful mortality which attends any outbreak of cholera among the Mecca pilgrims. At a given period the pilgrims stand naked in turn at the place appointed; a bucket of water is poured over each man; he drinks what he can of it, and the rest falls back in to the holy well.

The water from this well has been analyzed by Dr. Frankland, F. R. S., of the Royal College of Science, London, who describes it as fearfully polluted with abominable contaminations. Imagine, then, one single member of this enormous crowd to be suffering from the early stage of cholera; to be struggling, as struggle he would if with his last strength, to get through the holy rite, and to be allowing the cholera discharges with which his body would be soiled to be washed back into this foul well.

What is to happen to the crowd of pilgrims who close in on the spot that he has left, and who, each in turn, swallow in rapt fervor the fetid draught in which these thousands have been washed? Can we wonder, then, knowing the history of the Broad street pump, that in 1866, with a few days of the ceremony, the road leading from Mecca was for twelve miles thickly strewn with dead bodies—a holocaust to be added to the account of perverted religious rites which has already so deadly a record?

On one occasion at least 150,000 people came into Calcutta in the first and second weeks in February. Great throngs came on foot whose numbers were not noted; 23,000 came by boat up the Indian, 90,000 came by the Eastern Bengal State Railway, and 32,000 by the East Indian Railway. Obviously the influence of railways in intensifying the danger of quick and wide diffusion of cholera after great festivals must not be neglected.

To describe the crowding which occurred in the Indian on the festival day is difficult. Perhaps the accompanying photographs will give some idea of the scene, and of the recklessness with which the filthy water was being bathed in and splashed over the head and even drunk. A large proportion of the pilgrims would not drink filtered water. They had come, they said, to bathe in and drink Ganges water, and they would have none from the standposts and carts. Happily, the tube-well near the police station was not considered unholy, and was in lively requisition. The picture shows the crush to be very great, and it is marvelous that no accidents happened.

Among the large number assembled there it was not likely that cholera would be entirely absent, and if present it was certain to be spread by the customs of the festival, and thus it happened that in the second week in February nearly two hundred of the pilgrims died from cholera. The pilgrims soon had to be dispersed, and, though their dispersal checked a larger outbreak at Kalighat, which would, only have widened its circle afterward, it could not prevent those already infected from suffering on their way home. Consequently, at some of the railway stations sick people had to be taken out of the trains; passengers by boat died on their voyage, their bodies being thrown overboard, while travelers on foot were picked up dying or dead on the roads.

Ivory Jelly.

[From the Vegetarian.]

Our contemporary asserts that ivory dust for jelly is sold in London at 6d. per pound. "Ivory dust for ivory jelly" has an attractive sound—it is almost poetical. Ivory is part of the anatomy of the elephant, an animal we all regard with interest and some affection, and we have an unconscious respect for the article itself; our associations with it are all of palaces, thrones, the gorgeous East and artistic workmanship, rather than magnificent or the exquisitely dainty, so that our "Elephant Soup" should rank in our minds with Cleopatra's famous blend of vinegar and pearls. Yet when we call ivory dust by its simple name of tooth scrapings or bone dust, it is somehow not quite so attractive. Bone dust smacks of bucolicism and of that interminable land question.

Ivory dust is the waste which results from the manufacture of ivory into various articles, and a workshop will accumulate, according to amount of output, from five to six pounds in a week. The proportions are one pound of dust to a quart of water, boiled eight or ten hours. The product is a clear jelly, which is strained and flavored to taste, or diluted for soup.

Aroostook's Crop as Good as Any in the Land.

A Burglar Scare, Recovery From Blindness, Etc.

Aroostook.

An Italian financier from New York has arrived in Auburn and turned over to the contractors of the Rumford Falls line enough money to pay the men who had left work on account of their pay overdue. Much of the cash was peanut money, and one man on being paid, gave the family with whom he boarded $30 in one and two cent pieces.

While a clerk left the front part of a Lewiston store to go to the rear to put some ice cream in a box for a boy, another young fellow who went into the store robbed the money drawer. They were arrested by City Marshal McDonough, who found $1 in the lining of John Fahey's clothing, one of the boys. The other's name is John Rawlins. These same boys robbed P. P. Getchell, one holding an illustrated paper in front of his face while the other took the money. Another time, after buying a cigar at D. W. Lowell's cigar store, they saw through the window that the drawer was left part open and improved the best opportunity to go in and get $51 there was in the drawer. One of them recently bought a cucumber of Mr. Spear, of Spear, & Webster, while the other robbed the till. They have been caught each time, but as one is only 12 and the other 14 years old, they were not punished. [illegible]

The following inventory of assets filed on the books of the Androscoggin county insolvency court in the case of an Auburn man: "Wearing apparel, $20 (exempt); one Bible, 25 cents; one pack of cards 3 cents. There seems to be little doubt about the man being amply prepared to cope with any emergency which may arise.

Aroostook.

Presque Isle Star-Herald: We learn on good authority that the railroad grading from Houlton to the county line is now finished and that the county commissioners have been so notified by the company. This makes a stretch of forty miles. At the Brownville end the last of the week will see about twenty miles of track laid. An army of 2,000 men are strung out on the unfinished sections comprising about thirty miles, and the work is being very rapidly pushed.

All in all the outlook seems to be for a fairly prosperous season in Aroostook, notwithstanding the general business depression, says the Star-Herald. An immense crop of grain and potatoes is now assured, and the prospect is that fair prices will rule in the potato market. Hay is going to sell at a good price, and there is a large amount of good merchantable hay in Aroostook barns. Grain promises to be low, but there will be an immense crop. The chances seem to be that Aroostook will get off without very great "scorching" from the hard times.

Judge Smith, who returned from the Pacific Coast last week, states that he saw nowhere on his journey such thrifty and promising crops as are to be seen in Aroostook now.

Cumberland.

The names of those who were lost on the Portland schooner Mary Lizzie, reported Friday, and the families they leave are as follows: Capt. John B. Woodbury, three children; Alphens Doughty, wife and three children; Fred R. McIntyre, wife and three children; John Hughes, wife; Charles N. Ridley, wife and four children. Upton has an insurance of $1,000 in the Golden Cross, but the families of the others are left without resources of any amount. The fishing schooner Monticello, of Harpswell, was out in the same gale and was near the Lizzie when the storm was at its height. One of the Monticello's crew tells the writer that the waves were running higher than her masts. They saw the Lizzie could not stagger through but it was beyond their power to lend succor as they had no hopes that they could live through the storm in their own vessel.

A New Yorker, enumerating the advantages of the Casco Bay resorts, over such seaside places as Coney Island, mentions one that will be appreciated by all frequenters of our coast—and that is he likes our Maine coast better because he can tell your Maine clam chowder from tomato gruel, and we really put clams into our clam bakes.

The Transcript says that Mr. Eleazer C. Shaw, aged 85 years, of Commercial street, Portland, the oldest merchant in active business in that city, was the first grocery drummer in Maine. When he took a trip down through Sagadahoc, Knox and Lincoln counties, in 1816, to extend his brother's trade, and sold $1,000 worth of goods, it was a great innovation. Mr. Shaw does not look over 70, and has reported at his store at quarter to seven o'clock every morning this summer.

Samuel Rolfe, an esteemed citizen of Portland, has been an Odd Fellow for fifty years, and has drawn but $10 in sick benefits during that time.

Kennebec.

There was a burglar scare, Tuesday morning, in Waterville. Someone coming down Main street about two o'clock saw a person working at the front door to the residence of W. M. True. The night watch was immediately notified and went up to find the thieves but no trace of anyone was found. In the morning it was discovered, however, that a cellar window had been broken.

The twenty-first annual meeting of the Maine State Jersey Cattle Association was held in Winthrop. The books show the society to be prosperous with an increased registry. The officers are: R. S. Sampson, of Temple, President; O. Gardiner Rockland, B. F. Briggs, Auburn, Vice Presidents; N. N. Pike, Winthrop, Secretary and Treasurer.

The annual convention of the Maine Deaf Mutes' Mission was held in Gardiner Saturday. The meeting was called to order by President George W. Wakefield, of Brownfield, at 3 p. m. The president gave his annual address, followed by the election of officers, the old board of officers being re-elected, as follows: President, George W. Wakefield, Brownfield; secretary, Dana B. Taylor, Kennebunk; treasurer, Albert L. Carlisle, Bangor. Sunday afternoon the society, numbering about fifty, attended services at the Baptist church. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Mr. Berry, of Waterville, interpreted by Rev. W. G. Jenkins, of Hartford, Conn. Sunday night at the Episcopal church another sermon was interpreted to them by Rev. Mr. Jenkins. Monday they made an excursion to the National Soldiers' Home, after which they departed for their various homes. The next annual convention will be held at Kennebunk, on the last Saturday and Sunday of August, 1894.

A thirteen years old son of George H. Coffin, of Harrington, lost his right arm above the elbow last week. He was gunning in a boat, and while in the act of drawing the gun towards him by the muzzle it was accidentally discharged, the contents passing through the arm, shattering the bone to that extent that amputation was necessary, which operation was performed.

Among the noted musical people who have spent the summer at Old Orchard Beach is the distinguished voice teacher, Madame Louise Cappiani, of New York. Beginning with the Madame comes to Old Orchard for rest and recuperation, arriving the [illegible] and remaining until October. Five years ago she bought a bungalow on the sea wall near the Bay View House, and erected a handsome villa, now known as Cappiani cottage. It is painted a delicate straw color, with red trimmings, and is surrounded by well-laid-out grounds and artistically arranged flower beds here and there. Directly in front are the never-ceasing waves breaking upon the sandy beach, while in the rear stands a grove of sturdy pines, making the situation altogether ideal. Madame Cappiani is accompanied by her sister, Madame Marie Schmuck de Perkenfeld, an estimable Italian lady, who makes it her duty to superintend the care of the garden.

Caught Mr. Blackbird.

Attracted by the chirping of the canary birds and Java sparrows in the bird house at the Zoo, in the New York Central Park, a blackbird, nearly the size of an ordinary crow, fluttered about the Arsenal. It tried to enter the bird house through the ventilators and the wired windows behind. Failing, it tried the front window, but the crowd frightened it away. Then it flew through the monkey house. The monkeys were in, but were not sociable. So, finding a window of the police station open, it fluttered through to the desk where Sergt. Mulholland sat.

"Well, what's the charge?" asked the sergeant, absent-mindedly; but seeing his mistake he apologized and captured the bird.

Director Smith took charge of it and now the inquisitive fellow occupies a cage in the bird house, along with a couple of congenial winged captives.

Repeal in the House.

After several weeks of talk the overwhelmingly Democratic House with the aid of the practically solid Republican vote has succeeded in passing the bill for the repeal of the silver purchasing act. The various amendments were voted down and then the bill for the unconditional repeal was sent to the Senate. It is thought that some measure providing for the repeal of the act may pass that body when a vote is reached, but it is not easy to predict when that stage of the proceedings will be reached. There is an opportunity for unlimited debate and the free silver men have insisted that they will avail themselves of all the "time necessary for a full discussion of the question." The vote on the Montana Senatorship seems to point to a narrow margin in support of repeal.

Tariff and Its Effects.

Ten times since the war tariff was passed have the Republicans revised or amended it in general bills. They have been persistent tariff tinkers. But always, with one exception, the duties have gone up, up! The average duty of 36 per cent. in the original war tariff of 1862 had increased to 38½ per cent. in 1874. Under the "reform of the tariff by its friends" in 1883 the average rose to 42. Then, with a surplus revenue of nearly $200,000,000 annually, came the McKinley revision of 1890 covering every schedule, and last year the average duty on dutiable articles imported for consumption was 49.71.—New York World.

The above has been sent to us says the American Economist by a Republican with a request for the truth.

The World, with its usual disregard for fairness, only gives half the story. The average ad valorem rate of duty on free and dutiable goods, under the tariff of 1862, was 28.28 per cent. In 1874 it had decreased to 26.28 per cent. and in 1883 it was 29.02 per cent., while in 1892, under the McKinley act, it was only 21.26 per cent.

The average duty is the average upon free and dutiable goods both, and is so stated in the statistics of the Treasury Department, but the World, which never stops at a lie in order to gain a point, gives the dutiable rate only. A protective tariff is designed to be a tariff equal to the difference in wages between this and competing countries on manufactured goods that we can make in this country, or which are luxuries, but admits free all non-competing raw materials that will aid our manufacturers. In making an average of the duties upon all our imports it would be manifestly unfair to omit the value of the raw sugar that we import and which is free, while including the values of foreign manufactured goods.

It will be seen from the foregoing that the McKinley act has reduced the average ad valorem rates of duty on both free and dutiable goods to 21.26 per cent. last year, as compared with 28.28 per cent. in 1862, and 29.88 per cent. in 1874. The per capita of duty collected in 1874 was $3.71, whereas in 1892 it was only $2.60, a decrease of 73 cents per annum for every man, woman and child in the country.

"What are They Running For?"

The New York Tribune printed a cartoon to illustrate where the responsibility rests for the present business situation. It represented a sheep-fold which a sign announced as a "protected sheep-fold; Uncle Sam, proprietor," and that individual clad in his well known garments was resting on the ground under the sign. A panic had suddenly seized the sheep and they were rushing terror-stricken in every direction. The cause of their fear is a huge tiger crouching on the wall surrounding the fold and ready to spring on the defenceless sheep. As the tiger sees the terror of the sheep he asks "What are they running for? I've done nothing yet."

It is probably as effective a presentation of the case of the present financial crisis as could be given, and those who are trying to make people believe that the sole cause of the present depression in business is the silver law will find it hard to give it an answer says the Philadelphia Press. The silver law, with whatever pernicious features it may have, and administered as perversely as the Democrats have insisted upon doing, could never have created the business panic. With gold coming back at the rate of $5,000,000 or $8,000,000 a week any fear of our currency dropping to a silver basis has been dismissed, even with the purchase of silver bullion maintained at its present size and the law administered by those hostile to its spirit. The public has practically dismissed that fear.

The panic is due to something else and that something is the fear of tariff reduction. It is the sight of the Democratic free trade tiger crouching and ready to spring upon the protective tariff that has caused the present financial crisis. The Democratic orators and organs look around at the wreck and ruin of financial prospects and see mills closing and the unemployed numbered by the hundred thousand, and then innocently ask: "Why, what is all the trouble about? Protection laws are still in force and nothing has been changed. What are people afraid of?" Just as the tiger, crouching on the bounds of the sheepfold and eager to glut his hunger, exclaims as he sees the sheep scurrying for a safe place: "What are they running for? I've done nothing yet." Such guileless wonder as the innocent Democrats express has probably never been equalled since the astonishment of Mrs. Gamp at the temerity of Betsey Prig in declaring that "there ain't no sich person," meaning of course, Mrs. Harris.

The plain truth of the situation is shown by the Tribune's cartoon. It is the sight of the Democratic free trade tiger that is frightening the industries of the country that have been built up by a protective tariff. Take away the tiger and the panic will cease. But so long as the tiger remains in sight the business of the country will continue to apprehend harm and will show the effects of the apprehension in closing mills, bankrupt railroads and thousands of unemployed. That is why they "are running."

An Industrial Panic.

The New York Tribune says: The Democratic panic of 1893 has already produced a greater prostration of industries than the panic of 1873 produced at any time within six succeeding years. It does not seem wrong to dominate this the Democratic panic, because it is distinctly the fruit of a Democratic victory, and of the expectation of great changes in National policy which that victory promised. Under the laws, exactly as they now stand, the country touched the highest point of prosperity and industrial development it had ever attained in October of last year. But immediately after the result of the election was known, with the same laws having action, there began the depression which has already produced such startling effects.

In 1873 a long apprehension of overtrading and excessive speculation, intensified by a depreciated and fluctuating currency, came to a head. It was not until specie resumption had been assured in 1878 that general recovery began in all departments, but the increase in production was in many industries not so long delayed. Further, it will be astonishing to many to observe how little comparatively the production of industries diminished during those years of trial and disaster. The records of some of the great industries are complete, and the following statement shows the consumption of pig iron for calendar years named, of wool for years ending June 30, of cotton for years from September 1 of the years named to September 1 of the following years, and the shipments of boots and shoes from Boston each calendar year:

	Iron, pig.	Wool.	Cotton.	Shoes.
1873	2,802,506	249,114,771	1,909,000	1,451,506
1873	2,401,481	237,780,384	1,440,000	1,386,336
1874	2,454,261	21,218,674	1,296,000	1,300,498
1875	1,315,473	241,268,342	1,308,000	1,449,180
1876	2,065,430	231,966,357	1,379,000	1,561,900
1877	2,130,085	205,745,133	1,575,000	1,706,025
1878	2,520,389	244,673,978	1,704,000	1,884,712

It will be seen that in the iron manufacture the decline, from 2,802,000 tons of American pig consumed to 2,005,000 in 1876, was 28½ per cent. But from May 1 to August 1 of this year the decrease has been over 40 per cent. The decline in wool consumption was at the greatest only 7 per cent. in two years, but the decrease in the purchases of wool at the principal markets this year indicate clearly a decline of more than one third in consumption from May 1 to August 12. The decline in consumption of cotton in 1874-75 compared with 1873-74 was less than 8 per cent. But while the actual consumption this year is not known, it is stated by those best acquainted with the manufacture that over 2,000,000 spindles have stopped in New England alone, which is about 13 per cent. of the whole number in the country, and besides, a large number has stopped in other sections. The shipments of boots and shoes declined from 1872 to 1873 only 115,000 cases, or less than 8 per cent. and did not afterward decrease. But the shipments since the end of May this year have been about 804,000 cases, against 893,700 for the same time last year—a decline of 10 per cent.

If greater and more disastrous results have already been produced in the most important industries of which accurate statistics are kept, within three or four months of this year than were produced in years after the collapse in 1873, is it not plain that the cause is not any disorganization of the currency or of banking facilities? For in every such respect the disorder produced by the crash in 1873 was greater than has yet been realized; a far greater proportion of the banks were forced to suspend payment; the premium paid for money was much higher, and the paralysis of exchanges between different sections was much greater. At that time the currency was of constantly changing value, but now it is all as good as gold. The evident truth is that this year the danger is one which goes directly to the industries themselves. They are paralyzed because they are threatened with the unchecked competition of foreign labor.

Handsome prizes are offered and much interest is manifested. This will be the only gathering of the national guard this year. The shooting will be under the charge of Col. E. C. PEARY'S EXPEDITION

Meets with Discouraging Setbacks.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Aug. 28.—Further discouraging news concerning the Peary expedition comes from Labrador by a mail steamer arriving here last night. According to the last report Peary was at Davis Inlet August 2nd, and on the 5th he had reached Nain.

There he tried again to purchase dogs, but failed. He offered the Esquimaux 40 cents each for dogs, but as they were worth four or five dollars each, the Esquimaux would not sell. Peary left for Okkak, the next Moravian settlement. As they would not pay greater prices there either they could not get the dogs. Then he announced his intention of going to Hebron, Ramah and other settlements farther north and making every effort to secure dogs at those places, and if unsuccessful he was depending upon getting dogs at Disco, Greenland, as a last resort.

As the burros all perished before Nain was reached, it was impossible for the expedition to accomplish anything without a far greater number of dogs than was at first considered necessary. It is believed here that Peary's actions are suicidal. The steamer has been delayed a month behind the regular time, rendering it problematical if she reaches her destination at all. It is almost certain that she will be frozen up before the cargo and supplies are unloaded.

CONGRESSIONAL.

The Wilson Repeal Bill Passed the House.

The Vote in its Favor Unexpectedly Large.

Vote on the Final Passage Stood 240 to 110.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—The bill to allow the National banks to increase their circulation was taken up and a vote was taken on the amendment offered by Mr. Cockrell, Democrat, of Missouri, for the redemption of two per cent. bonds and the payment therefor in a new issue of treasury notes. The amendment was rejected, yeas 23, nays 28.

Another amendment was offered to the national bank circulation bill by Mr. Cockran, akin to the Johnson bill in the House. It allows the holder of any United States bond to deposit it in the treasury and receive its face value in greenbacks.

It differs from the Johnson bill in the fact that it proposes that the bond owner on withdrawing it is to be paid the interest which it earned while in the treasury less 1 1/2 per cent. per annum.

The Lee Mantle case came up in the Senate this afternoon. The first vote was on laying on the table a motion to reconsider the vote of last week declaring Mr. Mantle not entitled to the seat from Montana. The motion to lay on the table was agreed to, yeas 30, nays 28. This finally defeats Mr. Mantle.

Mr. Cockrell said the amendment would increase the circulation to whatever the amount people wish, but the maximum would be the amount of United States bonds, less the amount deposited by the national banks. The effect of the amendment as to gold being demanded by holders of legal tender notes would be precisely what it now is. Any holder of United States legal tender notes has a right to demand and receive coin at the treasury.

The people of the United States know that greenbacks are money. Under the Johnson bill the owner of a bond would lose all the interest on it while it is held in the treasury. This amendment would only deprive him of 1 1/2 per cent. per annum of interest which would place him on the same terms as the national banks now have.

The Senate adjourned.

House.

Mr. Bland's 16 to 1 free coinage proposition was defeated, yeas 124, nays 226.

The announcement of the vote on the 16 to 1 ratio was received with applause and some surprise at the majority against free coinage, it being nearly double the largest estimate made by the anti-silver committee. Mr. Bland from his seat at the extreme left of the speaker smiled grimly as he heard the result, nervously chewing and rocking to and fro on his pivot chair.

The figures seem to show that a majority of the Democratic members voted against free coinage. Mr. Bland asked a yea and nay vote on the question of free coinage at the ratio of 17 to 1 and secured it. The vote on the question resulted, yeas 100, nays 240.

On this vote besides the loss of the Populist vote, the members of that party withholding their votes, there were several negative votes from those who voted in favor of a ratio of 16 to 1.

Mr. Bland then offered an amendment providing for free coinage at a ratio of 18 to 1 and demanded the yeas and nays. There were protests against this and cries of "No", but eighty-five gentlemen seconded the request and the roll was again called.

On this question the yeas were 102 and nays 239. The next amendment was that providing for free coinage at a ratio of 19 to 1. The yeas and nays were demanded and ordered. The roll call showed the following vote: Yeas, 105; nays, 207.

The ratio of 20 to 1, the next amendment offered by Mr. Bland, was defeated 199 to 222. The next vote was upon the last amendment to the Wilson bill covered by the agreement, that providing for the re-enactment of the Bland-Allison act of 1878 requiring the coinage of at least two million silver dollars a month and permitting the coinage of four millions. On this the vote was yeas 136, nays 212.

At this point Mr. Wheeler, of Illinois, announced that owing to severe illness he had just reached the House and had been prevented from voting on the propositions previously disposed of. He was given unanimous consent to have his vote in the negative recorded. This added one vote to the official tally figures on every vote.

Mr. Bailey rose to propose an amendment to the bill. The amendment commits the government to the maintenance of the parity of the coins of the two metals as at present, at the ratio or such other ratio as may be established by law.

The Speaker ruled the amendment out of order and called for a vote on the engrossment and third voting of the bill. This was ordered and the bill was read a third time by title and the roll called on the final passage of the bill.

The Speaker announced the result: Yeas, 240; nays, 110. So the bill was passed. The announcement was followed by applause on the floor and in the galleries.

On the Bland-Allison act the affirmative vote was made up of Democrats, 112; Republicans, 15; Populists, 9. On the negative, Democrats, 103; Republicans, 112.

Mr. Catchings, of Mississippi, gave notice that he would ask the House to consider the rules to-morrow, then the House adjourned.

AWFUL DEED

Of a Mentally Deranged Parent.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 28.—Frank H. Sheffield, aged about forty-two years, a prominent prohibitionist and educator of Westerly, killed his five-year-old daughter Margaret at Rocky Point, about four o'clock this afternoon. The man was arrested and was taken to East Greenwich. The prisoner has been mentally unbalanced for some time and had just recovered from a severe attack of erysipelas.

The Summer Visitors.

The bulk of the tourist travel has now started westward, although quite large numbers will come to the resorts to pass the month of September, which is regarded by many as the best month of the year to be at the seaside, on the mountains or in the country. Then the air is cooler, the scenery is heightened by the changing leaves and much more rest can be obtained after the somewhat fatiguing gayeties of the summer as practised at many of the resorts. The great majority of the cottage owners stay through September and enjoy themselves thoroughly, while not a few stay even later. Maine's summer resorts are at their best in September and tourists should stay and enjoy the favorable conditions.

BAR HARBOR.

A Palatial Residence Added to Already Large Number.

Something Unusually Fine in the Way of Entertainment.

A Tally-Ho Party Arrived at the Famous Resort.

[Special Correspondence Whig and Courier.]

BAR HARBOR, Aug. 28.—To the already long list of palatial residences at Bar Harbor, there has just been added another. It is most beautifully situated and is ideal in its appointments. Its owner is Hon. Hugh McMillan, of Detroit. The lot is adjoining the property of Hon. Nathan Matthews, of Boston, and is but a stone's throw from Kebo Valley on the one hand and Highbrook Road with all its magnificent houses such as Mossley Hall, Stanwood, the Blaine cottage, and Ben-y-Bryn, the Barney estate, on the other. The house is one of the long rambling style of architecture. The main staircase will be one of the principal features.

It is placed in a tower with broad landings at frequent intervals, fitted with luxurious seats for a comfortable view of the wonderful scenery of the surrounding country. The interior finishing will be largely white, simple in treatment. Mr. McMillin has also secured six acres of land surrounding his house and these will be greatly improved with tennis courts, etc. The stable will be nearly seven hundred feet from the house and it will have accommodations for a large number of horses, of which Mr. McMillan is especially fond.

Something Unusually Fine.

and unique is anticipated for Tuesday night when the Turkish minister, Mavroyeni Bey, and his friend Mr. Frederick Diodati Thompson of New York, will entertain at the Mt. Desert Canoe Club at Bar Island. These gentlemen are lavish entertainers, but their dinners, lunches and picnics of the rest of the summer sink into insignificance at the last affair that they arrange. A display of fireworks will be a part of the programme. It will be from boats anchored out in the stream where the whole population can have the opportunity of seeing it. Greek fire will be burned under the water and huge dragons, crocodiles and sea-serpents all giving forth streams of colored lights will transform placid Frenchmen's Bay into a fiery sea. Balloons will be sent up and all the boats used to convey the guests from the wharf to the club house will be illuminated. This it will be seen that the evening is being looked forward to by the entire village.

Mr. Wadsworth Harris, for three years a member of the Madame Modjeska company, will give dramatic recitals at the Louisburg this evening. Mr. Harris has been spending a month at this hotel. From here he will go to The Algonquin, St. Andrews, N. B., where he will be the guest of Sir Leonard and Lady Tilley.

Senator George Z. Erwin, of New York, with Mrs. Erwin, Mrs. Dart and Miss Dart are among the week's arrivals at the West End. Mr. Bernard Biglin, Miss Alice, Miss Josephine, Miss Polly, and Miss Florence, his interesting daughters, are also among the recent arrivals. At the same hotel are Mr. Frederick S. Wait who never misses a summer at Bar Harbor, Mr. and Mrs. James Miller, Mrs. S. S. Cook, Miss J. F. McWellman, and Miss J. VanLurcan, all of New York.

There Has Just Arrived

at Bar Harbor a party on a tally-ho coach, the entire journey having been made from Philadelphia. From Fall River the route was through the picturesque sea-port towns of Massachusetts, and the return will be by the way of Augusta, Lewiston, through the White and Green mountains and along the Hudson river. The six horses that brought the party have all taken prizes at the Philadelphia horse shows. Four are bays, one is a gray and the other a chestnut. Mr. Edward Browning, of Philadelphia, is the host and the whip. The party is now visiting the cottage of Col. Edward Morrell, of Philadelphia. Mrs. Morrell was a daughter of the late A. J. Drexel.

Visitors to Bar Harbor should not fail to spend an hour in the little yellow building on Mt. Desert street where Mr. Smillie's beautiful water colors are on exhibition. The time has passed for the closing, but urgent requests have made the artist change his plans and give everybody an opportunity of seeing the dainty bits of Maine coast scenery again and again.

The fall term of the Maine State College begins to-day and quite a number of the students were in the city yesterday on their way to Orono. President A. W. Harris begins his duties with the opening of the term he having arrived at Orono with his family a short time ago.

State Steamboat Inspector Charles Staples, Jr., of Portland, arrived in the city yesterday afternoon and was joined here by Inspector Horace Atwood, of Hampden. They went to Calais and other places in that vicinity to examine steamers and will be engaged during the rest of the week in that work.

The people of West Bangor petitioned the Bangor Street Railway Company for a branch line there but the company will be unable to act upon the petition as desired this year. Next year, however, it is probable that the matter will be taken into consideration. There is quite a territory for a line to cover there.

The West Branch drive yesterday was at a point between Ohmon and Passadumkeag and it is thought it may reach the boom to-day. The water has fallen somewhat in the past few days so that progress has been retarded recently. The water has not been at a sufficiently high pitch to make an early arrival of the drive.

The steamer Sedgwick took a moonlight excursion down river last evening. The party was a good sized one and a sail down river as far as Fort Point was then taken. Wagatt's Orchestra went and furnished delightful music. The event was a very pleasant one and was arranged by Messrs. Robert Henry and Albert Atkins.

Brown & Dillingham yesterday received a handsome new buckboard from the Davis manufactory at Ellsworth. It will take fourteen people and will doubtless be in demand by pleasure parties during the pleasant weather. There has been a great deal of buckboard riding this summer and it will continue for some time yet.

Frank Labree, who was convicted on the charge of assault upon Deputy Sheriff Lancaster, of Old Town, and Frank Herrington, who was convicted on the charge of assault upon Frederick G. Smith, left yesterday forenoon on the Boston steamer in charge of Officer Pierce, of the State Prison, for Thomaston to serve their sentences.

A good many instances of forgetfulness come to the notice of the conductors of the street cars, but the funniest of all occurred Sunday, when a lady riding from the west to the east side, left the car and got some distance from it before Conductor Dean called to her and asked if she did not want her baby, a child of fifteen months, which she had left in her seat! She had already forgotten a bundle which she left on the west side car and also to ask for a transfer to the east side.

At the last annual meeting of the United States Association of Statisticians at Denver, Col., Hon. S. W. Matthews, Commissioner of Maine Bureau of Labor and Industrial Statistics, was elected Second Vice-President of the Association with Mr. Peck of New York, President, and Mr. Bowdine of Indiana, First Vice-President. The rolling away of time has removed both the latter gentlemen from their office and consequently from the association, making Mr. Matthews the head of the organization. He received recently from Hon. Carroll D. Wright, at the head of the national department of labor, a letter requesting him, as the surviving executive officer, to call a convention of the association at Chicago, in October, to discuss certain important subjects which will come up. Agreeably to the request Mr. Matthews will in due time issue the call as requested.

Somewhat too Fresh.

In preparation for the expected extra service during Fair week the Electric Railway Company has been breaking in some extra motor men and conductors. Some of these are entirely too fresh and assume to "know it all," while the older ones in the service are, as a general thing, careful and polite to the patrons of the road. A marked instance of freshness was exhibited yesterday on the Center street line when, on the down trip after dinner, a young man who was motor man allowed his car to run down Cumberland street and around the curve into Harlow street at a speed decidedly dangerous.

Upon one of the passengers remonstrating with him he said he "knew how to run his car," and was very curt in his answer, particularly when called upon for his number, which he finally gave as "46."

The conductor stated in answer to a question that he was a special, and all on the car were of the opinion that he had served long enough, and complaint was made to the central office. The people pay for riding and they want to be assured that they shall be carried in safety and without impertinence from those in charge of the cars. We do not believe that the management of the road will sustain their employes, either in careless handling of the cars or impertinence to passengers.

Municipal Court.

James Grace, drunkenness, $3 and costs.

Patrick Burke, search and seizure, $100 and costs and 60 days in jail, 60 days additional in default of payment.

Richard Morgan, drunkenness, discharged.

STATE RIFLE SHOOT

Will Begin at Augusta To-day.

The State rifle shoot will be held at Augusta to-day and to-morrow and will be of much interest as many of the crack marksmen will participate.

There are to be seven men and one substitute from each company, and including officers and others, about 180 men will be in camp, which is about one-fourth the number seen at a complete encampment. They went yesterday and leave on their return home Wednesday afternoon. The privates and non-commissioned officers are to be given their meals at some of the company cook houses, while tents will be pitched for their occupancy. The commissioned officers and visitors will be entertained at headquarters and on Tuesday the Governor, members of his staff and State officers, including the Executive Council, are expected to visit the muster grounds.

The gold and silver medals and badges offered by the State for the National Guard rifle competition are in the hands of the inspector and are the finest in workmanship and value ever offered for competitions. The two to be presented by Governor Cleaves are of elegant design, eighteen karat gold. They are prizes for the State championship and the best sharpshooters, scores at 200, 500 and 600 yards.

The teams will be made up as follows:

Co. A, Hampden—Lieut. Geo. Emery, E. A. Robertson, C. J. Emery, George Wyman, A. A. Pomeroy, Fred Humphrey.

Co. B, Lewiston—Lieut. W. A. Paul,
